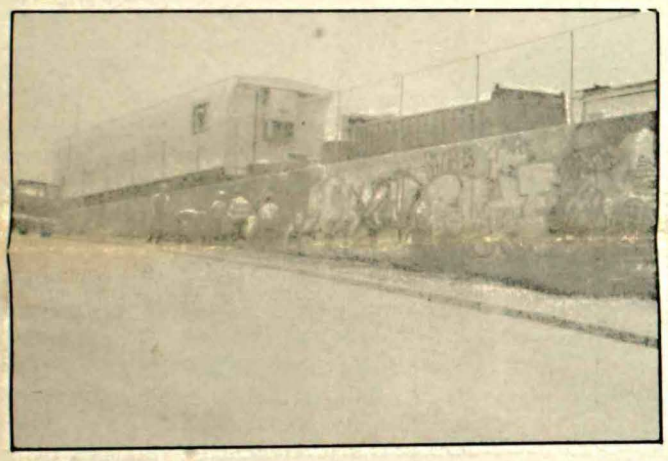
More than 200 pitch in to help wipe out graffiti in Spring Valley

Spring Valley residents turned out in force last Saturday to be part of the first Spring Valley Community Anti-Graffiti Day. The project was a strong showing of a community united to combat the gang-related graffiti problem. Six to eight teams of volunteers scattered throughout the community to eliminate all signs of the graffiti.

Captain Jim Roache of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station was pleased with the results. He said the cost of materials for the initial clean up was approximately $1,000 and thanked the many businesses and organizations who contributed. Roache estimated that the on-going effort would probably require $100-200 per month. Any individuals or organizations wishing to contribute to this project should contact Captain Roache.



The task was awesome.

Department of Motor Vehicles releases figures on licensed drivers

There's no questions about the rapidly growing number of automobiles on San Diego's roads – streets are more crowded.

Actually the number of people with drivers' licenses have grown by only a quarter-of-a-million in the last four years, but it seems like more.

The California Department of Motor Vehicles released a report last week showing how the total has grown.

As the year ended in 1984, there were 1,376,800 licensed drivers in San Diego County.

At the end of 1985, the total had grown to 1,425,800. As 1986, '87 and '88 ended, the totals had grown to 1,493,300, 1,558,500 and 1,611700 consecutively – or 234,900 over the 4-year span.

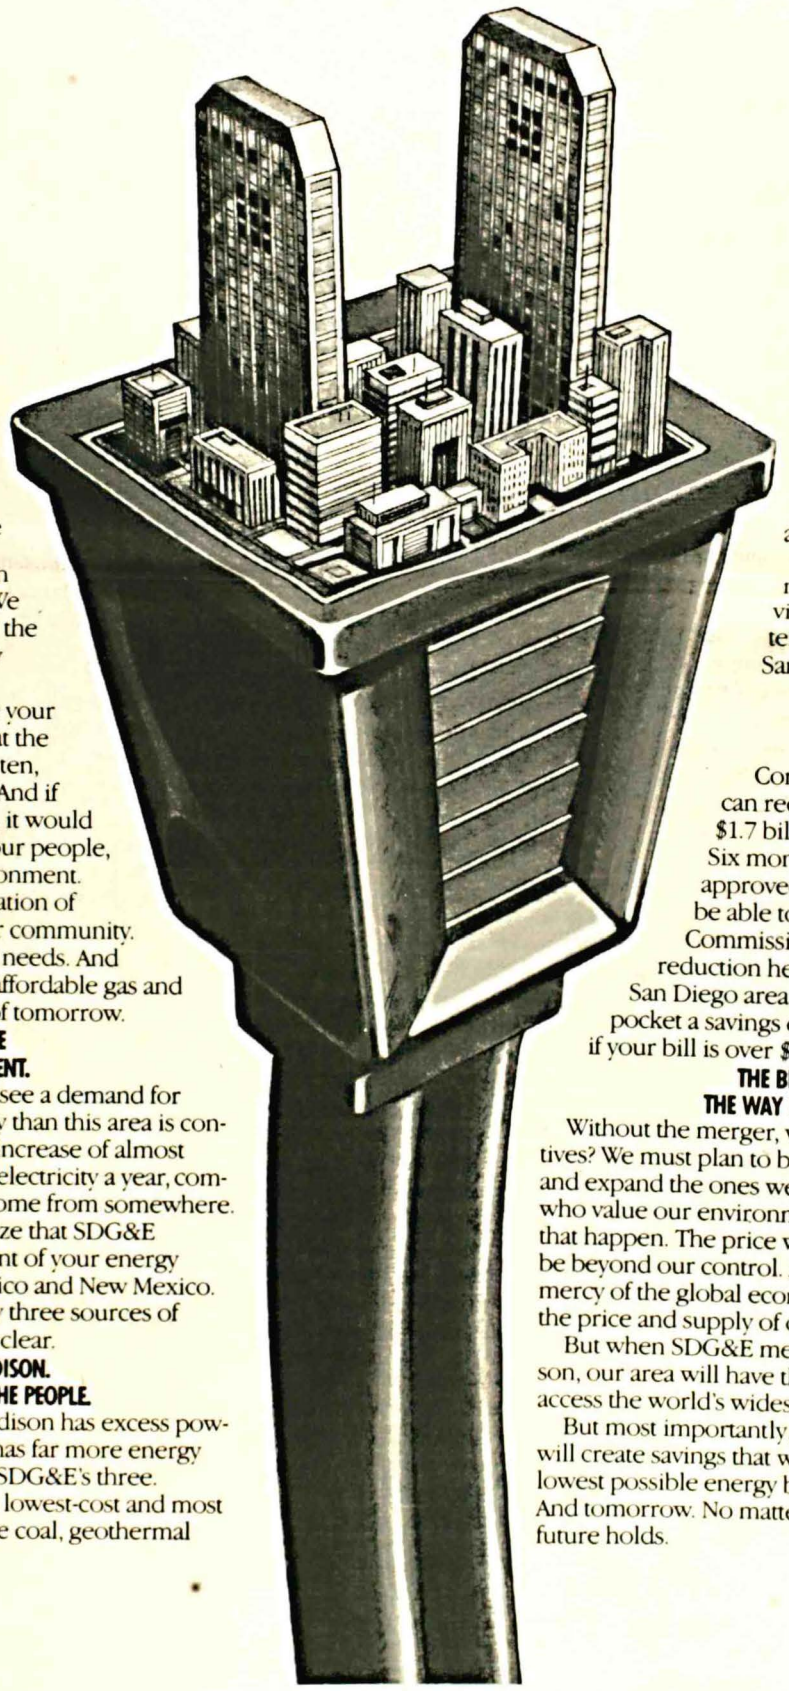
PLANNING FOR TOMORROW'S GENERATION.



A lot of our customers have asked if they'll benefit from SDG&E's coming merger with Southern California Edison. We believe you will. Especially in the amount you can expect to pay every month.

Look at it like this. Suppose your job was to predict exactly what the San Diego region will be like ten, even twenty years from now. And if you made the wrong forecast, it would be an expensive mistake for our people, our businesses and our environment.

That's a pretty good explanation of SDG&E's responsibility to our community. Our job is to anticipate future needs. And plan now to deliver reliable, affordable gas and electricity for the San Diego of tomorrow.

DEMAND WILL BE UP ABOUT 30 PERCENT.

Through the year 2000, we see a demand for about 30 percent more energy than this area is consuming now. It adds up to an increase of almost four billion kilowatt-hours of electricity a year, compared to today. And it has to come from somewhere.

But most people don't realize that SDG&E must purchase up to 60 percent of your energy from places like Arizona, Mexico and New Mexico. Locally, we have access to only three sources of power. Oil, natural gas and nuclear.

SDG&E AND EDISON. MORE POWER TO THE PEOPLE.

Just north of us, however, Edison has excess power plant capacity. And Edison has far more energy resources. Nine compared to SDG&E's three. Including some of the world's lowest-cost and most plentiful sources of power, like coal, geothermal and hydroelectric dams.

So you can see that the merged companies will provide a secure, lower-cost, long-term supply of energy for the San Diego area.

A $1.7 BILLION SAVINGS MEANS LOWER BILLS FOR YOU.

Combined, our companies can reduce costs by more than $1.7 billion through the year 2000. Six months after the merger is approved, the merged company will be able to apply to the Public Utilities Commission for a 10 percent rate reduction here. With approval, the typical San Diego area customer can expect to pocket a savings of around $50 a year. More if your bill is over $70 per month.

THE BEST PLAN ALL THE WAY DOWN THE LINE.

Without the merger, what are SDG&E's alternatives? We must plan to build new power plants here, and expand the ones we operate now. Most people who value our environment would rather not see that happen. The price we pay to import energy will be beyond our control. And we'll be more at the mercy of the global economic conditions that affect the price and supply of oil and gas.

But when SDG&E merges with neighboring Edison, our area will have the security of being able to access the world's widest range of energy resources.

But most importantly, the combined companies will create savings that will mean the lowest possible energy bills today. And tomorrow. No matter what the future holds.

Sheriff's deputies apprehend driver after chase through Lemon Grove

At speeds reaching to 50 mph, Stephen Paul Burdick, 25, led Sheriff's deputies on a chase through residential areas on the west side of Lemon Grove at 7:15 a.m., Monday morning.

Burdick first attracted the attention of Deputy Gene Palos when his green Ford Maverick approached eastbound Broadway traffic stopped at the Massachusetts Avenue intersection at an excessive rate of speed, braked quickly, and nearly collided with a small white vehicle, according to Det. Bruce Fulton, who later assisted in the arrest and provided the following account from police reports.

The suspect noted Palos' presence and turned southbound on Massachusetts, now followed by Palos, and then west onto Westview Drive.

Failing to yield to Palos' lights and sirens, the suspect turned south on Florine Drive, ran a stop sign turning east on Central Avenue, and increasing speed, ran the red light turning south on Massachusetts traveling at 50 mph.

Palos noted in the report that numerous children were en route to school in the area.

Burdick proceeded south on Massachusetts, recklessly passing moving vehicles on the shoulder of the street, and ran the red lights at both the Mt. Vernon Avenue and Madera Street intersections.

He then turned across oncoming traffic, without regard to his own safety or that of others, onto Primira Street, and rounding Calle Entre only La Corta where he cut the corner too closely, nearly colliding with a parked motor home, and came to a stop.

Detective Fulton and Deputies Glen Revill and Terry Lawson had joined in pursuit of the suspect at various points and arrived to assist Palos in Burdick's arrest. Burdick was convinced at gunpoint to exit his vehicle without further incident.

In searching the vehicle, officers discovered packaging bindles and a portable weight scale, generally associated with drug sales; a fully loaded hand gun in a shoulder holster; an empty money belt; drug-use paraphernalia; 1.010 grams of methamphetamine; a waist-style gun-belt; 16 rounds of ammunition; a cable converter box; RCA and Unisonic televisions; a 35 mm camera and items labeled with motel names, Fulton said.

Burdick is charged with felony evasion of a peace officer, possession of a concealed weapon, possession of a billy club, and possession of a controlled substance, Fulton said.

Burdick is a resident of the Shadow Knolls area of El Cajon. His arraignment is pending.

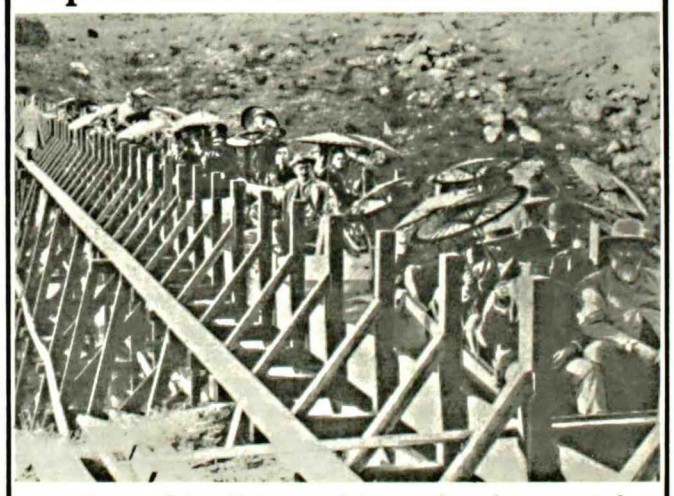
Where would we be without water? Up a flume without an umbrella?



Governor Robert Waterman and the parasol crowd were a part of the dignitaries heralding the start of a water system to move water from Lake Cuyamaca to La Mesa on February 22, 1889. The 33-1/2 mile long gravity redwood flume sat atop trestles and ducked through tunnels as it brought life-giving water to the thirsty San Diego area. We still get the same yearly 10" average rainfall as then, but the 2.3 million people in San Diego County today need more water than the 35,000 residents did in 1889!

Ninety percent of the water used in San Diego County is imported from hundreds of miles away through treatment facilities to provide the high quality water for about a penny a gallon! Now, as then, conservation needs to be a part of our lifestyle.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

Those who plan to spend part of their vacation in Washington D.C. are urged to visit a most fascinating exhibit. The exhibit referred to is not one of those huge things that excites the imagination by the way of size – until after you've seen and understood it. Then you'll begin to appreciate "the power of the people."

"American Voices: 200 Years of Speaking Out," is in the huge National Archives spread and tells how people have been battling wasteful taxes.

The reminder of this ongoing struggle came in a communication from Philip C. Clarke, an official of America's Future, Inc., a New York firm with its focus on governmental waste. The thrust of his material is that if there were less waste in government, the tax bite would be lighter.

The material is based on the contents in the "200 Years of Speaking Out" exhibit, where it is shown that taxpayers were airing their resistance to burdensome taxes prior to the Declaration of Independence when 60 patriots disguised as Indians dumped English tea into Boston Harbor in protest of King George III's taxes.

After the British closed the harbor in retaliation, the Governor of Connecticut, Jonathan Trumbull, on behalf of the people of Boston, wrote to the British Parliament demanding that the harbor be reopened.

Trumbull's letter is on display in the "200 Years . . . " exhibit. Since then, politicians have learned to be wary of public protests. Other communications in the exhibit picture the public's views of government leaders, dating from the Revolution and the Civil War through the Great Depression and World War II to present.

Among the more intriguing exhibits is a 1940 letter to President Franklin Roosevelt from a 12-year-old Cuban admirer named Fidel Castro, asking for a "ten dollar bill green American." Castro got a reply, but no money.

A 1945 letter signed by scientists at Los Alamos, warned President Truman of the "unimaginable devastation" of the atomic bomb. It was sent the day after the first test explosion in the New Mexico desert.

The communication quoted Stacey Bredhoff, the National Archives exhibition's curator as saying the purpose is "to illustrate the relationship between the people and the government . . . they say something about one of the rights we have in this country: the right to address the government, ask for help, express dissent, propose a policy change without any fear of reprisal.

Today's citizens more loudly speak their minds, particularly in opposition to excessive government spending.

Piling up on Congressional desks these days are telegrams, letters and postcards urging the House to make good on its agreement of last October to close or consolidate 145 military bases which the Pentagon itself considers obsolete and unneeded.

Leading the base-closing campaign is the Council for Citizens against Government Waste, an outgrowth of the Grace Commission, a blue-ribbon business and professional group appointed by President Reagan in 1983 to find ways to save money and eliminate the federal budget deficit.

The Commission produced a 3-year plan for nearly 2,500 spending cuts, totalling more than $424 billion, about a third of which have been enacted. Among the recommendations were the military base closings which the Commission claimed could save taxpayers $2 billion to $5 billion a year.

The Council for Citizens Against Government Waste now charge that "several big spenders in Congress . . . are attempting to stop the deficit-cutting base closings for selfish, political gains."

The Council disputes critics who argue that the closings will create economic hardships in the communities where the bases are located. It cites government statistics showing that the base shutdowns in the past actually have led to more diversified private business and increased civilian employment.

Also under discussion in Washington are proposals to covert some of the closed military bases into detention centers for convicted drug offenders, and to help believe the nation's overcrowded prison system.

If this would save the taxpayer's money, the Council for Citizens Against Government Waste is sure to be heard from–its membership has grown by nearly a quarter million during the past year.

This week, hundreds of Californians are marching on Sacramento because a deep cut is being planned in the state's mental health program. Some battle for less; others for more. Democracy allows its citizens to plead or protest with impunity. Some make you mad. Some make you glad.

Democracy is a wonderously flexible system . . . but it takes a lot of watching.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

My good neighbor asked, "Frank, can you show me how to hang wallpaper?" Paperhanging was my profession for nearly 40 years.

I answered, "Sure, Sonny, gladly." Sonny was always doing something for us, fixing things, or just helping out when we needed him.

I had hung some paper for him before my disability, so now he would have to do it himself. He came over, and I gave him a short course in the art of hanging wallpaper. I also let him use my tools of the trade.

Sonny asked me, "How many rolls will I need for our dining room?" I told him, so he went shopping and came back with some real nice paper, fairly expensive.

So early one morning, he started to hang wallpaper. In just a short time, he came running across the street, and disgustingly announced, "Guess what, Frank? I just cut all the paper too short for the room."

We both thought hard as to what to do with too-short wallpaper. Sonny suggested, "I'll just hang it and then later, I'll install a wide wood cove moulding at the top and no one will be the wiser. I can make the moulding myself, so it won't cost nearly as much as buying all new wallpaper."

All I could say to that was, "In all my years of hanging wallpaper, I had never tried that trick before; although, it did sound pretty good." So Sonny went back to work, happy that the problem was solved.

I didn't hear from him until late that afternoon. "I haven't enough paper to finish the dining room and I did order the number of rolls you told me to."

He had a sample and a label from the paper. It stated that the wallpaper coverage was in metric, so instead of double rolls, they were only a roll-and-a-half, All imported English or Canadian patterns were measured in metric, so he was short of paper.

Sonny called the wallpaper store, and found out that his choice was discontinued; hence, no more available. He went back home, disgusted again, and not knowing what to do.

I didn't hear from my good neighbor for a couple of days. He came across the street, this time happy as a lark. "Guess what again, Frank? I had enough paper to finish the job after all."

"That's impossible, Sonny, as you just can't stretch wallpaper."

He then explained, "You know how I did it? I tore down the wall between the kitchen and the dining room, and then I had plenty of paper. My wife always wanted the kitchen bigger anyway."

Sonny's wallpapering job turned out real nice, and just goes to prove the old adage, "Where there's a Sonny, there's a way."

P.S. A few days after the paper job was finished, Sonny came over to declare, "You know what, Frank? I just found an unopened bolt of that wallpaper under the sofa. No idea how it got there, but if I would have found it before, I wouldn't have had to remodel the dining room."

Sports Commentary

by John E. Wirges

You hear the question all the time. "What's wrong with the Padres." The answer is even more simple. "Nothing, really."

The more you see Padre manager Jack McKeon in action, the more you have to appreciate his total command of who the Padres are, where they're going and how they're going to get there.

The idea that the Padres may not have enough horses to contend for the pennant has been echoed by a host of would-be experts, a flock of faithless fans, a myriad of reporters and a bevy of columnists since the opening of spring training. There has been little let up. They revoice their sage judgments at every loss, sometimes at just close games.

There were too many holes, they say. There is no one to hit behind Jack Clark, nobody to back up shortstop Gary Templeton, (at 33 considered to be "aging.") There is no "closer" in the bullpen, but mostly, there is no third baseman.

That makes you wonder which team they are watching. Sure, the Padres are scratching for runs, but look where they are. Jack McKeon's troops started the week just a game out of the loop lead with a 17-16 record. Not bad for a team faulted in so many directions.

John Kruk and Carmelo Martinez are not hitting their weight. And Jack Clark is hovering at the .200 mark, about 10 points over his 190 frame. As a team, the Padres are 9th in the 12-team National League batting derby going into the week with an anemic .233 average. You can make the Padres posture pretty gloomy if you get your kicks that way. But that's not the way McKeon and his merry band of hard-working hackers look at life. They're out to win. And it shows.

First off, Mark Davis has emerged as the best "closer" in the game. He has no won/loss record. He just leads the world with 13 saves in 13 save opportunities and counting.

Kruk was posted to the barnacle list after a nose dive finish at the end of a hard run for a fly ball. Gary Green was returned to Las Vegas to work on his hitting.

Rob Nelson and Jerald Clark, both swinging "hot bats," were called up from Vegas to provide a little more punch to McKeon's lineup. Jerald had 3 homers and a .303 average, Nelson was hitting at a .320 clip with 7 homes for the Padres AAA club.

Nelson is a first baseman and Clark can play right field. If Nelson does the job behind him in the batting order, Clark may insist on playing the outfield to keep Nelson in the lineup. Tony Gwynn is hitting at the .330 level in front of Clark. If Nelson hits up to his promise, Padres offense is on the way.

McKeon's troops are off an a 4-city, 12-game trip with stops at St. Louis, New York, Montreal and Philadelphia. The Padres are 10-6 on the road and could make a move into serious contention if they continue anywhere near that pace.

The third base situation is unique enough to warrant a double take right here next time around.

What's wrong with the Padres? Not a lot! Just keep watching.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

Two weeks ago, I read an article in this paper concerning the upcoming Lemon Grove Old Time Days. Mr. Steve Aldrich talked about the Old Time Days Parade and how sorry he was that all of the local school bands were unable to participate. He presumed it was because of a conflict in scheduling.

Yes, Mr. Aldrich, it is because of a conflict in scheduling. I'm speaking about the schedule of the Lemon Grove Middle School Band. The band's marching season ended May 6, at the Maytime Band Review in National City. This is traditionally their last performance of the year, not some new schedule.

The students' many, many hours of rehearsal and practice all year-long lead up to the very important competition at the Maytime Band Review. During the year our band students also perform in several parades which add to their experience in preparation for Maytime.

In past years we were able to add the Lemon Grove parade to our schedule because it was scheduled in April, before the Band Review. The students were most happy and excited to perform in their own hometown, not to mention how proud they were.

In my experience, attending many parades in different areas, the "hometown" band was given a place of honor in the parade – usually right after the grand marshall.

This year's parade committee is pleased that because they moved the parade into May, they were able to get some "new" bands from other areas. I also think this is wonderful news for the parade, but please don't forget your hometown band. Lemon Grove Middle School Band has done a wonderful job for many years representing the city of Lemon Grove in many cities as far away as Anaheim. (They were invited to play at Disneyland last year).

My son has been a member of the band for 3 years. I know first-hand the dedication, hard work, and pride in what they do that is involved in this organization.

Maybe next year, if the Old Time Day's Parade scheduling permits, Lemon Grove Middle School Band can be the "host" band to all others that participate in their parade.

Lemon Grove should be very proud to be represented by such a wonderful group of talented, dedicated young people. I know I am.

Missing heirs sought by state

It's not a lottery, but it may be welcome money to proper recipients. The money will come from the office of the State controller, Gray Davis, who is liquidating 235 unclaimed estates in California, as required by law.

There are a number of such estates in San Diego that have not been acquired by those named in the estate reports.

The estates and the amount of the claims, are:

Bryan, Harry A.	$17,566
Graham, James Leslie	16,483
Griffin, Cathrine Pearson	9,218
Johnston, Phyllis Barbara	1,175
Kiely, Winifred	1,000
Matuzas, Eleanor	1,468
McAuliff, Edgar T.	2,200
Ryan, Ann Zucker	1,038

Inquiries should be made to State Controller, P.O. Box 942850, Sacramento, CA 94250.

The estates go into the State treasury, if left unclaimed for five years.

Business Briefs

Bank of Commerce has promoted Sid Wheeler to Vice President SBA Portfolio Manager. He has been with the Bank of Commerce since 1987 and has over then years of banking experience.

Wheeler has a MBA from National University, where he also served as the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association. He lives in Spring Valley, with his wife Bobbie, and has been elected to the Spring Valley South Community Planning Group.

Dr. Joel Cook, an affiliate of Lemon Grove Vision Care, was installed recently as president of the San Diego County Optometric Society by Dr. Jerry Legerton of Lemon Grove.

Cook has been in partnership with Legerton for five years. The partnership, Associated Vision Care Specialists, encompasses Camel Mountain Vision Care in Rancho Penasquitos, as well as the Lemon Grove office.

Cook, who has served on the board of directors of the optometric society for the past four years, said that he is pleased to continue the tradition of professional commitment and leadership exhibited by Legerton and, in prior years, by Dr. Cal Nichols, who both have served the society in several positions.

The second annual Chinese Food Fair will be held at Caliente Race Track on May 27 beginning at 6 p.m.

Twenty Chinese restaurants, all from Tijuana, will present their specialities for the public from both sides of the border. A $10 admission ticket will allow the visitor to eat an unlimited amount of food, according to Elizabeth Lopez, director of the event for the Tijuana restaurant association. The entry fee also includes margaritas, beer and wine, she said.

The Chinese community will provide free entertainment, including a dragon dance, other dances and singing.

Jan Wood honored as goodwill ambassador by Mexico and U.S.

Janet B. Wood of Mission Hills, television hostess in Tijuana and owner of a San Diego advertising and public relations agency, Jan Wood and Associates, was recently honored by organizations from the United States and Mexico as a goodwill ambassador between the countries.

Wood received plaques from the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and from the Secretary of Tourism for the State of Baja California.

"This is the first time a woman from the United States has been honored simultaneously by Mexico and the United States for distinguished service," Hector Lutteroth Camou, Baja California tourism director said.

Wood has devoted numerous interviews on her weekly show, "Tijuana – Window to the South," to explain the U.S. amnesty program for Mexicans and others illegally living in the United States.

Wood also lobbied successfully for more U.S. manpower on the international boundary gates at San Ysidro and in general has promoted tourism and goodwill for Mexico since she started her show in 1965.

Wood received plaques from Lutteroth's office and the INS. The INS plaque, signed by Harold W. Ezell, western regional commissioner, and James B. Turnage Jr., district director, says:

"In recognition of your service as innovator, implementor and ambassador of goodwill and finding common ground between government and civic representatives from both Californias have provided both the window and door to better relations . . . . ."

Wood also has been a columnist on both sides of the border and for a long period, was director of advertising and public relations for both Ensenada and Tijuana convention and visitors bureaus. In all of those posts she promoted goodwill for both countries. Especially significant was a lengthy article about Tijuana which she encouraged Time Magazine to develop and print. Wood's agency represents clients on both sides of the border, including Caliente Race Track for the last three years.

She has been honored previously by U.S. Customs and by the Tijuana Convention and Visitors Bureau in separate programs.

Wood was born October 13, 1921, in Fort Mitchell , Ky. She has lived in San Diego since 1960.

"Tijuana – Window to the South," after 20 years on television had been in a 10-month hiatus because of reorganization problems at the Channel 6 studios in Tijuana but returned to the air April 2, to be shown each Sunday at noon.

Tecate-Ensenada bike ride May 21

This is the final weekend prior to the Tecate-Ensenada International Sports Weekend in Mexico.

The highlight of the event on May 20 and 21 is the 73-mile Tecate-Ensenada Ride, the Grandfather of all recreation rides . . . the one that started them all and has drawn 16,000 participants and 40,000 spectators in the past, making it one of the biggest international one-day bike rides anywhere in the world.

This year the ride will be limited to 10,000 participants due to quality control.

The ride draws participants for all 50 states as well as Europe, Australia, New Zealand and Canada.

The 73-mile cycling event is open to the public and is described as "a fun ride, not a race." All participants who complete the 73-mile course from Tecate to Ensenada receive a medal and finishing certificate.

The ride begins at Tecate's Mexican Town Square at 9 a.m. on Sunday, May 21, and concludes in Ensenada.

Aid stations, which offer first aid, mechanical assistance, snacks and beverages, are situated every 6.2 miles along the length of the 73-mile course.

A lasting landmark

The Big Lemon, Lemon Grove's beloved landmark, was constructed as part of a parade float in 1928. It has been reconstructed at least three times, and has been relocated about as often. It's most recent move, in early 1988, was required by the Metropolitan Transit Development Board, to create space for the trolley tracks.

The agency renovated both the base and the Lemon itself, but under the bright paint and new plaster lies the original symbol of our small city's community spirit.

Remembrances

Karen (nee Dawson) Thomson, a resident for nearly 40 years, and Lemon Grove's City Clerk/Finance Director, shared with us a few of her memories of Lemon Grove's past. Thanks, "K.T.!"

I remember . . .

• Horseback riding in that great expanse of open space at the south end of Massachusetts Avenue – where San Altos Subdivision is now.

• Lemon Grove Powwow Days – the predecessor of Old Time Days. I remember tap dancing on the main stage (about where the trolley depot is now) with the Myra Sonka Tap Dance Group. According to the 1950 program, we were on shortly before Dennis Lee Hopper (an older man at 12) gave a dramatic reading.

• Playing the bass drum in the Lemon Grove Junior High Band. I think that same bass drum is still in the instrument room.

• Wrapping lemons in purple tissue paper at the packing plant located on North Avenue and Costabella Street. (It burned in the early '60's).

• The first supermarket – Big Ace Market – located at the corner of Olive and Broadway.

• Drinking chocolate cokes at the soda fountain at Haizlips Drug Store (now the Medic Pharmacy).

• The Piggly Wiggly Store (where the Family Bargain Center is located).

• Drinking root beer out of a frosty mug at Mel's Root Beer (where the Food Factory is now).

• Michael's Restaurant, known for its food and live entertainment.

• Saturday matinees at the Grove Theater (where Grove Office Supply now stands).

Thomson-Huff

Karen Thomson and Dick Huff were married May 1, 1989, in Kailua-Kona, Hawaii, aboard the sportfishing boat "Cheers." "Cheers" Captain, Lowell Tepper, served as best man, and first mate, David Leroy, was the "maid of honor."

Officiating was Reverend Leon Sterling, renowned on the Island of Hawaii for his knowledge and use of Hawaiian culture and tradition in the wedding service.

Karen (Dawson) moved to Lemon Grove in 1949 with her parents, Vada and Henry Dawson, and attended Lemon Grove Schools, Helix High School and San Diego State University.

She was selected to be the first City Clerk and Finance Director/ Treasurer for the City of Lemon Grove in 1977, and continues to be employed in that capacity.

Dick is a product of Philadelphia, moving to the San Diego area in the early 1960's. Following a brief sojourn in Washington, D.C., he returned to San Diego in 1969. He developed the San Diego Association of Governments and served as its first Executive Director, a position he held until his retirement in 1986. He attended Cornell University, and is a graduate of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Karen and Dick will reside in Coronado Cays.

Special celebration to be held this Sunday at Lutheran Church

Mother's Day, Pentecost, and Confirmation Day will be celebrated by members of Lemon Grove Lutheran Church on Sunday, May 14. Family traditions will surround the observance of Mother's Day.

But it is also Pentecost Sunday, when the church celebrates its own "birthday" and speaks of giving of the Holy Spirit to the disciples on that first Pentecost Sunday thousands of years ago.

In a very personal way, it will mark the day when the following six young people will affirm their baptism in confirmation rites: Eric Chase, Jennifer Chell, Kristy Lang, Kirsten Larson, Erika Robinson, and Jennifer Vaugh. Teachers who have guided them throughout the last two years of their study have been the Rev. E.J. Volkmann, Lee Selvig, Jim Paul, and Dr. Therese Botz.

"Our congregation continues to be blessed by the presence of these special young people in our life together, for they have provided joy to their teachers and everyone who knows them," said Pastor Volkmann.

In about 1897, a large packinghouse was built on Main Street, on land which later became Pacific Avenue. This packinghouse, which processed the fruit of some of the growers, was at one time the CCU (California Citrus Union) packinghouse. A few growers processed and shipped their own fruit for a few years.

In June, 1908, the Lemon Grove Fruit Growers Association (LGFGA) was incorporated. By the end of 1908, there were twenty-six growers listed as member/ stockholders in the LGFGA. Their first order of business was to lease the packinghouse of Mr. Arthur Lester.

In December, 1908, the LGFGA took over the Lester packinghouse in exchange for 75 shares of LGFGA stock, valued at $750.

In 1909, the LGFGA decided to buy land and obtain plans for a new packinghouse. Financing was obtained and the new packinghouse was completed early in 1910. This was the first of the three wooden sections. The second was added in about 1912, and the third was added in about 1920. The last of the four sections was the hollow clay block and concrete section added in 1925. The packinghouse was destroyed by fire in 1961.

Fire protection over the years

Editor's note: Nostalgic chapters of Lemon Grove's history have been circulating in the community for many years, but like all traditions, narrating the tales again only brings them nearer to our hearts. We extend thanks to the City of Lemon Grove for its permission to reprint much of the following information.

We now take for granted the excellence of emergency services provided us by the city's fire department, but a short trip through its history reveals the struggles overcome by its predecessors.

Prior to 1925, fire protection in Lemon Grove was nearly non-existent. Although the Forestry Service was obligated to provide this service, the lack of communication (there were only six telephones in the area), most often resulted in the total destruction of blazing structures.

Two homes were completely destroyed by fire in 1925, and community members determined that public safety required the formation of a local fire department. The first fire district was established that year, with an annual operating budget of $600, funded by donations of property owners.

A forerunner of our present hydrant, a four-inch pipe topped by a valve, was installed in the front yard of anyone who donated $7.50 to $10.

Following some unsuccessful experiences with its existing firefighting equipment, the district purchased a Model "T" truck with a hose and pumper, and a 1927 Dodge chassis on which a chemical tank was mounted. During this trial and error period, the department was embarrassed to discover that the pumper could not power itself to the top of certain hills in Lemon Grove.

The problem was resolved when a used 1927 Hudson was acquired and a "pushboard" was mounted on its front. From that time, and until the district was disbanded, the Hudson responded to calls along with the Model "T" and pushed it up the inclines that were impossible for the truck to navigate on its own power.

Both H.A. "Andy" Anderson and B.L. Kerfoot served as fire chiefs during this period and the department's 12 volunteers were paid $2 per fire response. An electric siren was mounted atop the Lemon Grove Lumber Company tower, at the corner of Main Street and North Avenue, to summon volunteers into action.

The beginning of the end of the Lemon Grove Volunteer Fire Department was signalled by the stock market crash of 1929. Money was scarce and taxpayers were not able to meet their obligations.

Lacking support funds, the department steadily declined in size and service until the Forestry Service took control of the equipment and again assumed responsibility for the protection of Lemon Grove in 1931.

This era of Forestry Service protection lasted for 18 years before the residents of Lemon Grove again perceived the need for a local fire protection agency, and another three years passed before Lemon Grove voters approved the formation of the Lemon Grove Fire Prevention District on June 15, 1950, along with a $30,000 bond issue for the purchase of necessary equipment.

In January, 1951, Ray Carmody was hired as the first paid fireman, and served for a total of 24 years. He was appointed Chief and served in that capacity for three years, until his retirement in 1973. Carmody, now 72, still resides in Lemon Grove with his wife, Madge.

H.L. "Pappy" Hensley was appointed Chief in 1951 and passed away last year after a lengthy retirement. His widow, Marguerite, is an active volunteer in the community.

Former Chief, Bob Adams, served in that post from 1976 until his retirement in February of 1987. He and his wife, Donna, continue their involvement in Lemon Grove.

The Lemon Grove Fire Department, under the administration of Chief Bill Wright, who was appointed to his post in November, 1987, now employs 22 firefighters and office personnel, as well as six disaster service officers.

In 1988, the department responded to 1,965 calls, of which 76 percent were medical assistance requests.

Today, the annual operating budget is $1,178,280, or 27.7 percent of the city's budget.

Continuing to provide excellent fire and emergency services to area residents and businesses, the Lemon Grove Fire Department is rated one of the best in California by Insurance Service Office, a national rating bureau.

A condensed history of Lemon Grove

By Bob Teel

The land which would become Lemon Grove was first inhabited by the Kumeyaay Indians. With the coming of the Spanish, it became part of Mission San Diego. The Indians who lived here came to be called Dieguenos, after the name of their mission.

In 1888, the San Diego Southeastern Railroad laid track into this area. Orange, lemon, lime and strawberry growing became important industries. By 1892, the population grew to 76 and the first general store was built.

In 1895, the First Congregational Church was organized. It was also the year the U. S. Post Office began using the single word spelling "Lemongrove." It would remain the official designation until 1950.

In 1907, Anton Sonka established the general store, and operated it with his son, Tony. Until Anton's death two years later, the store was called "A. Sonka & Son." Then Tony's brother, Emil, joined him in the business, which became the "Sonka Brothers" store. They would operate the store until 1945.

From 1900 to 1920, the town had one church building, located at Main and Church Streets, which was shared by all denominations. Growers raised peaches, pears, plums, figs, avocados, and garden vegetables.

But the area was especially suited for citrus fruits. In 1918, 200 railroad cars of citrus, valued at $300,000, were shipped from Lemon Grove.

Nearby Allison Springs (later to become La Mesa), was used by some residents of Lemon Grove as a source of drinking water. The springs also fed a swimming pool, and many Lemon Grove youngsters walked to Allison Springs to learn to swim.

By the 1920's, the population grew to 800, and the fruit and vegetable industries were flourishing. Most of the fruit was marketed through the Lemon Grove Fruit Grower's Association. Through the 1930's, Lemon Grove remained the center of tomato and lemon shipments to all parts of the United States.

During the 1940's, residential housing was developed. Families moved to Lemon Grove because they were able to keep horses, chickens, rabbits and gardens. Even then, growing lemons remained our principal industry. In 1946, 225 carloads of lemons were shipped.

By the 1950's, there were 216 businesses in town – including two theaters, real estate offices, restaurants and grocery stores. Long-time businessman, Tony Sonka, gave the town its slogan, "Best Climate on Earth," and the first of four incorporation elections was held in 1955.

Other incorporation elections were held in 1958, 1964 and 1977. The last one was, of course, successful. On July 1, 1977, the City of Lemon Grove was born.

Photograph of two-story stucco schoolhouse at Central and Main used from approximately 1907 until 1926

History of schools in Lemon Grove

By Don Heyser

The first school in Lemon Grove was held in a barn on the Henry Hurst ranch in about 1892. The Hurst ranch was later the William Fisher ranch. The Hurst/Fisher ranch was located between what became Fisher Lane and Cuyamaca Court (later Corona Street) south of Central Avenue.

In about 1894, a one-room, board and batten schoolhouse with a steeple was built. The one-room schoolhouse appears in some 1905 photographs, but no close-up, detailed photographs have been found to date.

In 1907-1908, a two-story, stuccoed schoolhouse was built on lots 7 and 8 at the corner of Central Avenue and Main Street. I have been told that the upstairs classrooms were unfinished as late as 1910.

The one-room schoolhouse may have been in use for a very short time after the two-story schoolhouse was built. According to Tony Sonka, the old schoolhouse was moved "across the railroad tracks from the end of Grove Street, near the older reservoir." The reservoir referred to may not have been the East Side reservoir, but a small private one in the next canyon to the east. I remember that there was a house below the dam at this reservoir which could have been the old schoolhouse converted to a dwelling. John Birdsell, "Johnny the Sailor," lived there in the 1930's.

The two-story schoolhouse remained in use in school year 1924-25, after which it was abandoned in favor of a new schoolhouse built on the hill at the east end of Central Avenue, east of Imperial Avenue. This new schoolhouse was first occupied in school year 1925-26.

The new schoolhouse was a long, narrow building. The main entrance doors faced west with wide concrete steps leading down to the unpaved "street" from Central Avenue to Lincoln Street. Across the full, inside length of the building, there was a wide hallway with doors to each of the classrooms. In rainy weather, this hallway was the "playground" at recess time. The east side of each classroom was largely window, also there were doors at each end of each classroom. The boys' and girls' restrooms were at the north end of the building, and there was a teachers' room at the south end. Later, another room was added to the south end of the building, forming an "L."

The school grounds extended from Lincoln Street to the south property line of the Bryan orchard, and were bounded on the east by the Livesay avocado orchard.

Later, the formerly unpaved, unnamed "street" in front of the schoolhouse was blacktopped and named School Lane, which today extends from Lincoln Street to Golden Avenue.

In 1976, the 1926 portion of the school building was declared unsafe and later demolished.

Col. T.J. Bryon home, freight loading dock, and the Lemon Grove railroad depot as they appeared around 1905. The Bryon stood at the corner of Golden and Imperial Avenues (now Lemon Grove Avenue) where the Union Bank and Thrifty now stand. The residence was razed in the 1950's for commercial expansion.

Dr. Amorita Treganza's memories – a treasure of the community of Lemon Grove

The City of Lemon Grove leans a bit toward left of the usual, in that many of the residents of Lemon Grove once arrived, settle in to stay . . . and stay . . . and stay.

Dr. Amorita Treganza is one such resident; she has been a vitally interested, totally committed, member of the community for 63 years.

And she is a bit unusual, herself.

In the 1930's, it was nearly unheard of for a woman to pursue a profession, and she was one of two female optometrists in Southern California at that time. Now retired, she has also retained the use of her maiden name throughout her long and illustrous career, and many people whom she has known for years, are not aware that she was the wife of the late Dr. Lloyd Adams, with whom she shared a practice for 25 years.

No frail violet, Treganza treks over mountain paths and continues to swim several early mornings each week.

She is vibrant, opionated, and appears much younger than her 77 years, which rest gracefully upon her, and seem to have brought her a deep, personal peace borne of wisdom and a happy conscience.

Interwoven through her contentment lies a rich vein of memories of decades lived in close communion with her community.

One of her earliest recollections took place in 1915 when whe was just three-years-old. She accompanied her mother on the train from Salt Lake City to visit her father' parents, and to see the World Exposition held in San Diego that year, she said.

"We travelled from San Diego to Lemon Grove in a horse-drawn buggy. The train arrived in San Diego early in the morning, and it was afternoon by the time we got to Lemon Grove," Treganza remembers.

"We travelled Imperial Avenue (renamed Lemon Grove Avenue in 1984), because at that time, there was no other route; no Market Street, no Federal Boulevard."

Treganza, gazing in the past, recalls her grandmother feeding the pigeons in Balboa Park, during that visit.

"I remember her high lace collar and full mutton-leg sleeves; her tiny waist, and a big, full white skirt. Her hair was all puffed-up high in the front, in the fashion of the day," Treganza recalled.

She still possesses the deed of sale to the house, her grandfather, Eduardo Treganza, purchased on Kempf Street, south of Golden Avenue, in 1890. Treganza still resides on that half-acre property, in a home she had constructed behind the original house which remains in very good condition.

The yard is shaded by a mammoth Brazilian Pepper tree, noted for their oddly twisting branches, which was planted by her grandfather before the turn of the century.

It was in 1926 that architect, Alberto Treganza, moved his family to Lemon Grove. Amorita was 14 then, and graduated two years later from Grossmont High School, where she had become a young, dramatic actress, smitten with the footlights of school productions. Her love of drama eventually led her to be instrumental in forming the Old Globe Theatre.

Treganza memories

In 1928, Alberto helped construct the float which placed third in the La Fiesta de San Diego parade. Amorita was selected to ride the float as Miss Lemon Grove – the first to bear that title – along with her attendants: Ione Tooker (Mrs. Dan Heyser), Florence Close, Arlene Moore, Helen Smith, Eloise Jensen and her sister Adalaida Treganza.

The primary feature of that float, the Big Lemon, stands in the City's center today.

Treganza recalls that only two blocks of Main Street had sidewalks then, and the street itself was paved with gravel. Golden Avenue was a dirt path in those days, as was Broadway, she said.

Lemon Grove's population numbered not more than a thousand people, as she remembers, and one had to shop for clothing in San Diego. Neither was there a delivery service for ice.

"If we wanted to make ice cream, we would go to Sonka Bros. Store for ice. They were the only ones to carry it," Treganza remembers.

Imperial Avenue was still the only throughway from San Diego, east in the 1930's.

"Imperial Avenue went past the quarry, then (a scar still visible today on the hillside north of Highway 94), through La Mesa, and into El Cajon. To commute to San Diego to work, you would catch the Greyhound bus at Imperial and Golden Avenues. Federal Boulevard was built after the depression," said Treganza

"In the 'twenties, we would walk up Imperial on hot summer afternoons to La Mesa to swim in the large swimming pool (now Collier Park), until 1931, when a youngster drowned, and they filled the pool in," she recalls.

She reminisced about the mischief her brother, Adan, and his friend, Donny Heyser (another long-time resident, and the historian of the Lemon Grove Historical Society, today), would find to participate in.

"I remember the nights – and days – Adan would arrive home with odd odors clinging to him," said Treganza.

Not tolerated at any other time of the year, the motley pair would spend Halloween overturning privies, and one year Adan missed his footing.

Another time, the boys caught and skinned skunks, thinking to become fur-traders. The skinning of the animals, particular toward the rear, was hazardous, it seems.

The master of the Treganza household discovered buried carcasses while he was gardening, by driving a spading fork into the wrong end of one. (And that brought two fur-trading careers to an abrupt finish, according to Don Heyser's account).

"It was all kids' stuff, and they never did anything really bad," Treganza emphasized.

"The trouble was that my father, during that time, was the local sheriff . . ." she added, laughing.

Treganza worked in Tony Sonka's general store to earn her tuition for her education, and she has assisted others in obtaining educations. She has published a book and authored or co-authored optometric manuals and articles. She has toiled a long, and sometimes arduous path to become the admirable, inspiring woman she is. Treganza was named San Diego's "Woman of Valor" in 1960, and San Diego's "Woman of the Year" in 1963. In 1975, she received the Getman Award from the College of Optometrists in Vision Development, the highest honor bestowed in her career field.

Her strengths and vigor for life's challenges may not seem so unusual if one considers her vibrant parentage, themselves exceptionally progressive for the times.

Grandfather Eduardo was an expert orchardist, specializing in the grafting and budding of trees. An ornithologist by avocation, "Treganza's Blue Heron" was named for him.

Her mother, Antwonet, not only had an occupation, but also participated actively within the community, and holds the honor of having been the first woman president of the very active Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce during the mid-1920's. She was Lemon Grove's first woman postmaster, and served in that capacity 1940-44.

Her father maintained his father's interest in the feathered world, and is purported to have had, at that time, the largest private collection of birds' eggs.

Lemon Grove is populated with a treasury of people – even entire families – intimate with community history. Chapters of unopened journals are stored within their collective memories, and we are truly fortunate to enjoy their good company.

NOTICE OF DEATH AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF CAROLINE LAURA DUNN CASE NUMBER: 145910

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both, of:
CAROLINE LAURA DUNN who resided at 1686 Watwood Road, Lemon Grove, California 92045.
A PETITION has been filed by FLORENCE M. DOEBRICH in the Superior Court of California, County of San Diego, requesting that FLORENCE M. DOEBRICH be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority allows the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain actions, however, the personal representative is required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to this petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on May 15, 1989 at 1:45 P.M. in Dept. F-5, located at 1501-55 Sixth Avenue, San Diego, CA 92101.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisement of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
